From 1st January 2024, Médiamat has included the audience of :

- French people not equipped with TV sets at home
- TV content watched on an Internet screen at home

As a result, Médiamat now tracks the TV audience, regardless of location (home, out of home), screen used (TV, computer, smartphone, tablet) and consumption mode (live, timeshifted, replay, preview) for all French people aged 4 and over.

PLEASE NOTE :

This methodological change makes it impossible to compare results with previous years.

Definitions

Audience in Viewing days : total audiences of programmes viewed live, time-shifted and on replay on a given day, regardless of the original live broadcast date of the programmes caught up with.

Audience share in percentage : share that represents the viewing time for a channel over the total viewing time for television media.

Monthly coverage : number or percentage of individuals who had at least one contact of 10 consecutive seconds with the TV media or the TV channel over 4 consecutive weeks.

Survey features

Médiamat, the benchmark in television audience measurement in France, provides daily audience figures for programmes watched anywhere, on any screen, live, timeshifted, on replay or preview, by all French people aged 4 and over, i.e. 62.4 million individuals.

The measurement is based on 2 representative panels :

- A first panel of around 12,000 individuals in 5,500 households, comprising :
 - 5,000 households equipped with home TV sets, each connected to a fixed audimeter, the source of home TV audience measurement
 - 500 households without home TV sets
- A second panel of around 5,000 individuals carrying a personal portable meter to measure TV audiences out of home (all screens) and on Internet screens at home. These audiences are then attributed to the individuals in the first panel by statistical fusion.

About Médiamétrie, a trusted third party for fair and objective measurements

Médiamétrie is committed to providing its customers with joint and sovereign standard audience measurements. As a data leader and media expert, the company applies its know-how to video, audio and cross-media behaviour measurements, as well as advertising effectiveness measurement. Every day, nearly 800 employees design and produce the right measure for today and tomorrow to support the free decision-making of the company's customers in France and abroad.

In 2023, the Médiamétrie Group achieved a turnover of nearly €104.2 million and processed over one billion data every day.
